The gobelin and the princess

By Noah—Antoine- Alan—Luigi

Once upon a time, in a huge kingdom, a sad king lived in a   big castle. His daughter had been captured by a gobelin and a dragon.

One day, the king asked a knight to help him and to find his daughter. First, the knight went in the woods. He found the wizard's hut. The wizrad accepted to help him if he answered his question.

« What walks on 4 legs in the morning, 2 at midday and 3 in the evening? »

« It's a man! » answered the knight.

« Good answer! »

The wizard rewarded the knight by giving a magiacl sword.

The knight walked in the woods and found a big lake. He walked closer to it. Suddenly, Nessie appeared. The knight was terrified but he fought the monster. He cut Nessie's head and won the fight. He returned to the castle and hanged Nessie's head on the throne. The king said:

« Where is my daughter? »

« Before dying, Nessie said a gobelin hed taken her in the mountains. »

« Go and get her, please. »

The knight quickly left the castle and climbed up the mountain. He found the gobelin and the princess. They fought but the knight cut the gobelin's head with his magical sword.

The princess was free.

The knight took the princess back to the castle and she lived with the king happily forever after.

The end.
